Integrative project developed within the Henry Bootcamp is a Single Page Application (SPA) that uses React for the Front End and Redux. The components were developed with CSS without the use of external libraries. The SPA fetches data from an API ('The Rick and Morty API') through a Back-End developed in Node.JS using Express. Users can search for a character, filter by their gender, sort alphabetically, and add them to favorites. Code

Full Stack Web Developer -Pokemon Api- May 2023.

The individual project developed within the Henry Bootcamp is a Single Page Application (SPA) that uses technologies such as React for the Front End, Redux for state management, and CSS modules for style management. The SPA fetches data from an external API ('Poke API') and communicates with a Back-End developed in Node.js, using Express. Additionally, the application uses Sequelize to interact with the PostgreSQL database, where data related to Pokémon is stored.
